

Economic Personalism

Property, Power and Justice for Every Person

Michael D. Greaney • Dawn K. Brohawn

Economic Personalism

Property, Power and Justice for Every Person

—

“This short but monumental work traces the historical development of the search for truth and justice through natural law as a set of principles originating in rational thought and further applied through the individual and social virtues taught by all the world religions. This book focuses on the sacredness of the individual person as a primary principle and paradigm of thought, especially as expressed through the inalienable human right to personal ownership of productive property. This, in turn, provides the basis of social justice.”

Dr. Robert Dickson Crane

Author, Global Strategist and Director, Center for the Study of Islamic Thought and Muslim Societies (2011-2015)

—

“[A] succinct evocation of the vision of Pope Saint John Paul II.”

Commander (Ret.) Robert Woodman

Leader of the 2004 Oglebay Norton employee buyout effort

Representatives of the Presidential Task Force on Project Economic Justice and Polish Solidarity meet with Pope John Paul II (February 1987).

ISBN 978-0-944997-13-0

9 780944 997130

Justice University Press